Australia has one of the best health systems in the world but will it sustain the onslaught of ageing and chronic diseases? The solutions are challenging and not impossible to achieve, but are unlikely to be ‘one size fits all’. They will require a real examination of what it means to be a health professional and what are our social responsibilities.

Peter Brooks AM MD FRACP is a Professorial Fellow in the School of Population and Global Health and the School of Medicine at the University of Melbourne, where he established the Australian Health Workforce in 2008. He was Executive Dean of Health Sciences at the University of Queensland from 1998 to 2009 and has held academic positions at UNSW, University of Sydney, Flinders University and the University of Tasmania.

When
Tuesday 11 August, 6.00pm

Where
Medical Science Precinct, Corner Liverpool and Campbell Streets

Register
www.events.utas.edu.au or 6226 2521

Refreshments from 5.30pm

Held in conjunction with the Medical Protection Society of Tasmania